RELIEVED OF HER SUFFERING

Mrs. Eliza B. Moberley, An invalid For Years, Died in This City Monday.

The entire community was shocked to learn Monday that Mrs. Eliza B. Moberley had died at her home on High and Sycamore streets. While Mrs. Moberley had been an invalid for years, few of her friends knew of her serious illness which lasted only a few days.

Deceased was a member of the Baptist church and although ill for the past few years kept her from attending the services of her Lord and Master she was always anxious and willing to contribute her share toward the advancement of his kingdom. Her husband, Mr. C. O. Moberley, died several years ago and her only son died just a few weeks ago, and it is thought that the loss of her only boy hastened her death. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Rezin G. Howell and Miss Minnie Moberley, besides many other relatives.

To the grief stricken family we extend our tenderest sympathy in their hour of sorrow. Funeral services will be conducted at the residence this morning at 10 o'clock by Rev. J. S. Wilson, with burial in Machpelah cemetery.

The girl with the Fisher look is the girl with a man tailored Balmacaan from The Walsh Co.

WILL PROBATED

The will of Thomas J. Raborn was probated in County Court this week. It was written in 1912 and witnessed by W. H. Strossman, Jr. and G. M. Hart, and a codicil added last year was witnessed by Lewis Apperson and Miss Dora Robinson. In the will Mr. Raborn makes a number of charges against his children to even them and then divides his property equally among them. He appoints his son, Roy Raborn, as executor, and specifies that he be paid $2 a day while actively engaged in winding up the estate.

Lost Cow

EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION

Held in this City Last Week Said to Have Been the Largest in History.

The largest meeting in the history of the Ninth District Educational Association was held in this city last week. The opening session convened in the High School Auditorium on Thursday evening, the program consisting of a chorus by the students of the Seventh and Eighth grades from the City Schools, a chorus by the Second grade and a song and chorus by the Third grade, after which Dr. M. B. Adams, president of Georgetown College delivered a very able address on the "Condition of Present-day Civilization." Miss Emma Hunt then made a strong plea for better health conditions throughout the State and urged the employment of a visiting nurse in every county.

On Friday morning the formal opening of the Association took place. After a chorus by High School students and one by the Fourth grade, Sup't. W. O. Hopper introduced Hon. C. D. Grubbs, who welcomed the visitors on behalf of the City Schools and Major D. J. Burchett, who extended a welcome on behalf of the County Schools. A song of welcome by Miss Elizabeth Strossman, a pupil of the Second grade called forth great applause. The response to the welcome extended was made by President A. G. Weidler, of the Frenchburg College. Miss Jessie O. Yancey, of Mason county delivered her annual address as president of the Association after which she introduced Dr. W. R. Thompson, who spoke on the Prevention of Diseases and emphasized the importance of teachers making themselves familiar with all phases of health work in order that they may properly impart same to the children over whom they are placed. Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart was detained in Louisville and could not appear on the program according to schedule but arrived on the noon train and spoke for a short time in the afternoon, telling of the work being done to eradicate illiteracy from the State of Kentucky. Prof. E. L. Dix, of Mason county, spoke on "The Neighborhood" and told his hearers how the community must co-operate if the greatest good is to be accomplished. After the appointment of committees, the Association adjourned until 1:30 p.m.

The program for the afternoon was divided—one part being arranged for those interested in City School work, this meeting being presided over by Sup't. W. O. Hopper, and held at the Chirstian church, the other meeting being held at the Auditorium and presided over by President Yancey. Mr. Lewis B. Fretz, of Defiance, O., was an interesting speaker at this meeting.

The evening program consisted of a solo by Mrs. R. D. Squires, of Carlisle, and one by Miss Ethel Ferguson, Supervisor of Music in the local schools, after which Professor J. T. C. Noe, Head of the Department of Education of State University, was introduced. Professor Noe's address was one of the strongest of the entire meeting, being in the nature of a warning against many of the late extreme theories in education. He made a plea for cultural education and defined true education in a way that appealed to every one who was so fortunate as to be present. President Eggleston, of Virginia could not be present, but Miss Ethel Lovell, of Louisville made a clear and convincing address in which she explained the real meaning of "Pre-Vocational" education as applied in the school in

PASSES TO HIS REWARD

Splendid Old Gentleman Dies After a Short Illness of Pneumonia Last Thursday.

Mr. Garrett P. Sullivan, aged 85 years, died at his home on the Winchester pike last Thursday after a short illness. Mr. Sullivan suffered a stroke of paralysis Monday which was followed by pneumonia and the end soon came. He was one of the best known men and most highly respected citizens of the county, and the news of his death was received with sincere regret by a wide circle of friends. Mr. Sullivan was the first man to raise tobacco in this county and was engaged in that business for several years, and was considered a fine judge of quality.

His wife died several years ago. He is survived by six children, Mrs. Lillian Walden, of Nashville, Tenn.; William Sullivan, of Charleston, Ill.; Mrs. F. D. Palmeter, of Mackville, Washington county, Ky.; Henry Sullivan, of this county, and Garrett D. Sullivan and Joseph P. Sullivan, of this city. The death of Mr. Sullivan caused universal regret all over the county. The Advocate extends sympathy to the stricken family.

WEDS MOREHEAD GIRL

Cards are out announcing the marriage last Wednesday at Morehead, of Miss Josephine Gearhart, of Farmers, Ky., and Mr. Wm. Maher, of this city. The bride is one of Rowan county's brightest and best educators, possessing both good looks and an attractive personality. "Billy" Maher is known and liked by everybody, but is such a quiet, modest—not to say bashful—chap, that his friends will no doubt be surprised at this announcement. He's certainly put one over us and we join with the many friends of the happy couple in wishing them a long, happy and useful life.

One of the largest mortgages ever recorded in Montgomery county was put to record last week by County Court Clerk Kellar Greene. The mortgage was for $3,000,000, and was given by the Kentucky Utilities Co. to the Illinois Trust & Savings Bank and W. H. Henkle, trustee.

MARRIED AT NOON TUESDAY

Wedding of Popular Young Couple Solemnized at Noon Tuesday By Bishop Burton.

The marriage of Miss Mary Crawford Lloyd to Mr. Amos Tabb Bassett, both of this city, was solemnized at the Episcopal Church Tuesday at high noon. Only the relatives and a few personal friends of the contracting parties were present. Bishop Lewis W. Burton, of Lexington, officiated and the beautiful ring ceremony was used.

The church was beautifully decorated in green and white, chrysanthemums being used profusely. Just before the ceremony Prof. Bruce Reynolds, of Lexington, played sweetly "A Dream" on the violin, accompanied by Mrs. George E. Coleman on the organ. She was given in marriage by her father while Mr. Bassett had no attendants.

Immediately after the ceremony the young couple left in a machine for a short honeymoon, their destination being a sweet secret.

This wedding was the culmination of a pretty romance that began several years ago when they were sweethearts in childhood's happy days.

Miss Lloyd is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Lloyd, and is a pretty and winsome girl with a distinctive charm of manner that has always made her popular and the center of an admiring throng at every social gathering since her debut a few years ago. She is the possessor of a splendid soprano voice and the calls for her services have been many.

Mr. Bassett is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Bassett and is a young man of pleasing personality. He is manager of the Mt. Sterling Drug Co., and by his progressive methods, strict attention to business and courteous treatment of his patrons has made for himself an enviable reputation.

The Advocate extends best wishes.

LOCAL TOBACCO DEALERS ORGANIZE

The organization of the Mt. Sterling Tobacco Association in this city Saturday was a step forward and means a great deal to the tobacco market and interests in this section. The houses comprising the association are the Farmers, Robertson, Burley and Whitehall companies. By-laws will be printed and the association run on a strict business basis. Heavy fines were authorized against rebating or in soliciting tobacco on the streets after it is brought to the city by the growers. It was also ordered that all buyers on the market must become members of the association and the dues fixed at $10 per year, with membership fee of $5.

The officers elected were A. S. Hart, president; Asa Bean, vice president; A. R. Robertson, treasurer and Harry W. Lockridge, secretary. All are representatives of the various houses. No supervisor of sales was chosen.

It was decided at the meeting that the first sale will be held at the Farmers warehouse, followed by the Whitehall; then the Robertson and last the Burley, and sales will be held every day, the first sale beginning Saturday, December 5. The association also decided that no warehouse was to house wagons during the sale season outside of their own houses. The association reported that arrangements had been made for buyers from all the large factories. J. W. Glover, who was with the Reynolds Company last season, will be with the American Tobacco Company on this market this season.

The Plunkville Patriot has editorially come out against compulsory prohibition.

W. C. Herman, the Wildeat school teacher lectured on the United States Friday night. We were surprised to see such a large and intelligent audience out. In the course of his remarks he paid a glowing tribute to our country, and it is a pity that everybody in the United States could not have been there to hear him. One reason we keep so far behind of other nations, said he, is that we are getting up and going to work on this side every morning while the people around on the other side are just going to bed.

Arthur Walsh caused a flutter of excitement in our midst one day this week by galloping up in front of the postoffice and announcing that he had just met a green colored mule down the road. While Arthur is regarded as a truthful church member, the crowd could scarcely believe their ears, and a delegation started out to view the mule with their own eyes. They looked up and down the road for several miles, and when they got back to the postoffice they found that Arthur had looked at an ordinary sorrel mule through green spectacles.

Frank Schachleiter, a prominent young society man also of Hot Water Springs writes the Torchlight to find out if the moonlight is just as strong in Snagtown as it is in Hot Water Springs. Yes, about the same.

The conversation at the postoffice the other night drifted from the war down nearer to home, and the subject of buzzards was dwelt upon at length by Leonard Boulton and others. "Dad" Schreckengast recalled that he had seen probably the biggest and oldest one on record. He said this one roosted near in an old barn in the Hog Hollow neighborhood, and was one hundred and twenty years old. It measured fifty feet from tip to tip, and many a time he says he has seen it swoop down and take a cow right out of the pasture in its claws, and feed it to the young ones.

Our ambition—Our esteemed contemporary down the street, in a three-column article of personal abuse, asks the question, "Will this Villain's ambition be satisfied with the office of Mayor?" We are the Villain referred to, of course, and we wish to frankly and emphatically reply that our ambition, so far from being satisfied, has just woken up. We are the editor and proprietor of a great weekly family newspaper, and the owner of a grocery, a harness shop, a shoe store, a gunshop, a butcher shop and a feed store all

We lead the german when the music strikes up, and when we are not leading the german we are telling the hostess how to work the ice cream freezer and fold the table napkins to resemble broken human heart. On top of all this we are Mayor of the town, elected by an overwhelming majority, and running municipal affairs in bang-up style. Such of the boys as do not respect us as Mayor take pains to keep clear of the two guns we are known to carry as an editor and a citizen. We have driven out the moonshiner, kicked every member of the Common Council and brought the postmaster down off his high horse. It doubtless seems to our contemporaries as if any one critic on this earth ought to be satisfied with such honors, but we are not. Far from it! We shall not pause long on the threshold. We are already laying wires to be elected to the Legislature, as we announced some weeks ago. It is the Senate or nothing with us. From thence to the gubernatorial chair will only be a step. From Governor to Congressman will only be a stride. We may not be satisfied with even that.

A Solemn Warning—Tuesday afternoon a man calling himself Grizzly Bill got into a dispute in the Red Trout saloon with an individual who has been generally known around town as Terrific Tom. Both drew their guns and adjourned to the sidewalk and began shooting. Twelve shots were fired and the only thing hit was Col. Bob McRoberts' bull dog, who died an hour later. The parties were promptly arrested and brought before us as Mayor, for shooting all over the town and failing to hit each other. It did not take us over half an hour to ascertain all the facts and particulars,

MARRY IN LOUISVILLE

Mr. Walter Shrout and Miss Colgate Bascom, both prominent young people of Sharpsburg, motored to Louisville recently, accompanied by a few friends, where they were married. They returned to Sharpsburg and will make their home there. The wedding of the young couple is a big surprise to their friends here. Mr. Shrout is a son of Mr. James Shrout, of Bath county, and formerly lived here. His bride is one of Bath county's prettiest and most charming young girls and a great favorite in local social circles.

GOOD CROP REPORT

The final crop report for 1914, prepared by Commissioner of Agriculture Newman, shows that the crops in Kentucky are much better as the winter begins than had been anticipated. The average yield of tobacco per acre is much greater this year than last. The outbreak of the foot-and-mouth disease will cause the stock raisers loss unless the quarantine is raised immediately. The report follows:

"The yield of corn is estimated at 25 bushels per acre. This is 4½ bushels per acre more than last year and 5.6 more than 1912. The yield of Burley tobacco is estimated at 954 pounds per acre, as against 665 per acre last year. However, more or less tobacco is damaged in quality as a result of excessive rain during the early part of October. The damage is estimated at 17 per cent. For the same reason dark tobacco is estimated to be damaged 13 per cent., with a yield of 840 pounds per acre, as against 503 pounds per acre last year."

POWER AGAIN DEMONSTRATED BEFORE 6,000 LOUISVILLE CITIZENS

HAND STIFF FOR TWENTY-THREE YEARS, RESTORED TO USE BY ANDES' GREAT MEDICINES.

Mr. Charles S. Smith, conductor for the Louisville Light & Power Company, came to the platform of the Great Andes Friday night when an offer was made for a limited number of free demonstrations to prove to the public what these medicines will do before the audience, to which he said he had been stiff from rheumatism for 23 years, he made repeated efforts to bend his fingers, wrist and hand, showing that he was unable to use them in any manner whatever. He was rubbed five minutes with the Great Andes' Oil, when the Great Andes addressed him as follows:

"Hold up your hand! Bend your wrist backwards and forwards as I do! Bend your fingers, open and shut your hand! Bend your wrist backwards and forwards as I do! No, let me hear you snap your fingers. Now pick up that pencil off the floor and you will have proved to these people that you have perfect use of your hand again!"

And Mr. Smith did each time as he was bid, showing that Andes' Oil had completely restored his hand.

THINKS TOBACCO CROP WILL DISAPPOINT MANY

Discussing the prospect for the tobacco crop, last week, Silas Shelburne, veteran warehouseman, of Lexington, said he did not think the crop was as fine or as heavy as most of the growers believed it was.

"It is a good crop with more of the heavy dark grades than will be needed," he said. "There is not as much fancy bright as we have had for several years past. While the trashes and lugs and bright leaf are very desirable, being good and ripe and well matured and making a fine sweet smoke, they are not as bright as we have seen them. They lost color during the hot rainy spell a few weeks ago. This possibly caused as much loss to the planters in the color of the crop as houseburn.

"I also am of the opinion that a great many of the growers will be mistaken in the weight of their crop. In the hill sections, where they plant by hand, the dry weather stopped them and not much over half a crop was planted so we can hardly count on much more than an average crop of Burley tobacco."

THE ONLY WAY

No State-wide system of good roads has ever resulted from any other than a State-wide plan of road making. The county as a unit has always been a failure when the State as a whole is considered. The campaign now in progress to promote interest in the application of the problem of roads in Kentucky should meet with a hearty and general response. Whether the State is to have its roads improved under the existing law depends upon the awakening of the various counties to their opportunity.

Wherever there is a general system of good roads it is the result of a comprehensive plan. As long as small governmental units operate independently there are good roads—provided the money is not wasted or stolen—where there is a large amount of valuable property, and there are bad roads in less developed sections. There is no uniformity in road making, and there is little hope of development for the less fortunate sections of the State.

England and France fought a

MORE STRENGTH FOR OLD PEOPLE

Mrs. Hutchison—Eighty-One
Years Old—Uses No Other
Tonic but Vinol and Recommends It to Friends.

Greenville, S.C.—"It is with pleasure I tell others of the great benefit I have derived from Vinol, for the past several years. I am 81 years old and I find Vinol gives me strength, a healthy appetite and overcomes nervous disorders. Vinol is the only tonic reconstructive I have used for several years. I have recommended it to a great many of my friends and it has always proved satisfactory."—Mrs. M. A. HUTCHISON, Greenville, S. C.

Such cases as the above are constantly coming to our attention. If people in this vicinity only realized how Vinol invigorates old people we would not be able to supply the demand.

It is the tissue building, curative elements of the cod's livers, aided by the blood making strengthening properties of tonic iron contained in Vinol, that makes it so successful in building up strength for old people, delicate children and for all run-down conditions. Vinol is also a most successful remedy for chronic coughs, colds and bronchitis. If it fails to benefit any one who tries it we return your money.

Wm. S. Lloyd Druggist,

The vast throng burst forth in cheers for the great medicine that is able to accomplish cures for cases that have been counted incurable.

Mr. E. A. Lindsey, of Bessemer, states

"I have been hard of hearing in my left ear for 30 years and so bad that I was unable to hear anything out of it at all. I have used Andes' Great Oil and Prescription for one week and believe my hearing to be completely restored. All head noises have ceased, the dropping of mucus stopped and my head is as clear as a bell. I am greatly rejoiced and feel that in making this statement I do so for the good of all who suffer as I did, for being deaf greatly hampered me in my business and was annoying to say the least, in private life. I went to church with my wife Sunday and heard every word of the sermon, something, I have not been able to do for years."

Mrs. J. M. Stiles, of Pratt City, states

"I have been hard of hearing from catarrh for 16 years; it has gone on ripe and well matured and making a fine sweet smoke, they are not as bright as we have seen them. They lost color during the hot rainy spell a few weeks ago. This possibly caused as much loss to the planters in the color of the crop as houseburn.

"I also am of the opinion that a great many of the growers will be mistaken in the weight of their crop. In the hill sections, where they plant by hand, the dry weather stopped them and not much over half a crop was planted so we can hardly count on much more than an average crop of Burley tobacco."

"One chief cause for the badness of the roads seems to have been the defective state of the law. Every parish was bound to repair the highways passing through it. The peasantry were forced to give their gratuitous labor six days in the year. If this was not sufficient hired labor was employed, and the expense was met by the parochial rate."

In a very considerable portion of Kentucky bad roads reflect the plan of road making which was a failure in England more than 200 years ago. Those sections are in some respects very like rural England in the Seventeenth century. They will not be brought up to date, without good roads, and they will not secure good roads unless the State-aid plan is put in State-wide operation. At present the farmers of the "rural" counties—counties without centers of population other than those supported by the surrounding agricultural community—are expected to build the roads. With the labor of their hands and that of their teams, or by the payment of taxes, they are expected to build and maintain roads for general service. Because they do not values of their farms are kept much below what the figures would be if improved highways traversed the rural counties.

The State-aid plan is designated to equalize the burdens of taxation for roads and give the less wealthy counties an opportunity to increase their wealth by making themselves accessible to travel and by reducing the cost, and eliminating the hardships, of freight hauling and passenger transportation within their borders.

In his address at the good roads meeting Wednesday afternoon President McBryde, of the Kentucky Good Roads Association, called attention to the fact that to a State-aid plan adopted 100 years ago and discontinued seventy-five years ago, Kentucky owes her best inter-county roads. Some of those roads, notably the Louisville and Nashville turnpike, reflect as one the employment of right methods of road making when they were laid down and a long period of neglect due to the inability of the poorer counties to keep them in condition. The "Old State Pike" between Louisville and Maysville has been kept up because it traverses the wealthier counties. Owing to peculiarly unfortunate conditions in Jefferson county, the worst part of the Louisville-Maysville road is, usually, the section lying within the boundaries of Jefferson, the richest county in the State, but even in Jefferson the Louisville-Maysville road has not been allowed to go to pieces.

Mr. Dunlap, speaking for the National Highways Association, of which he is assistant director general, ended his address with the following appeal for attention to the importance of the campaign which the meeting inaugurated:

"I want to leave this one thought with you, and it should impress you more than any statement that could be made—that is: If enough counties do not take advantage of State-aid during the year 1915 to show that State aid is wanted it will be the easiest matter in the world for a few enemies of good roads to repeal, as before stated, your present legislation, which will, if you please, retard the good roads movement in Kentucky at least twenty years."

There are differences of opinion as to whether the Kentucky law is as good as it might be made, in all of its provisions, but it will not be improved by disuse, and there is between advocates of good roads no difference of opinion as to the State-aid plan being essential to the development of a State-wide system of roads. There can be no difference of opinion upon the point that the poorer counties are the counties having the greater opportunity to profit by taking advantage of the State-aid plan. Jefferson county's interest lies in promoting the State's development. The road problem in this county will be of but little affected by the addition of a trifling amount—in comparison to the sum representing the county levy—to the annual road fund, by application for State aid. Yet Jefferson should be the leader in the effort to awaken the whole State.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in its later stages, that is Cataract, or "Catarrh Cure." This is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Cataract being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hence Cataract is soon removed and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have agreed with the company to pay for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

We are authorized to announce

HON. C. W. NESBITT

of Montgomery county, as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Commonwealth's Attorney of the 21st Judicial District, at the State Primary, August, 1915.

A PLAN OF LARGE POSSIBILITIES

Much consideration was given to the community or consolidated school plan, at the recent meeting of the Ninth District Educational Association and as a result many of the best citizens living in the Judy neighborhood, where such a school is proposed, are becoming interested in it. It does not require, as stated by some, any increase in the tax levy. All that is necessary is to secure the funds with which to acquire the land needed and erect an adequate building. Then the county board of education, under the present levy can maintain it. The educational advantages to be obtained by consolidation are so numerous that many progressive states, such as Wisconsin, Indiana and Iowa are yearly erecting many consolidated schools. In them the pupils are taught by grades and in an up-to-date and thorough manner. We hope, at no distant date, to see many consolidated or community schools in Montgomery county, which we believe will take place just as soon as our citizens understand the plan and the good that can be accomplished under it.

The name of State Inspector and Examiner Sherman Goodpaster is now being mentioned in connection with the Democratic nomination for State Treasurer, and it is said a determined effort is being made to get him in the race. Mr. Goodpaster's name had been connected with the race for State Auditor several months ago, but the State Inspector and Examiner only smiled whenever the subject was mentioned. He hails from Bath county, and with the influential following behind him, is a power in Eastern Kentucky politics. Friends of Mr. Goodpaster in Louisville this week said that they would not be surprised to see the Bath county man in the race for the State treasurership.—Louisville Times.

THE "CRUX" OF THE WOMAN'S FORWARD MOVEMENT

Twenty thousand dollars is needed to equip moonlight schools in Kentucky. An Illiteracy Commission has been appointed by the Legislature, but it is without appropriation. Therefore, this movement will be checked unless the citizens of Kentucky come forward to equip the schools. Kentucky, a strong State, ranks fifth from the bottom in native born white illiteracy. Two hundred eight thousand and eighty-four Kentuckians can neither read nor write; 37,000 voters cannot read their ballots; 90,000 women cannot read their Bibles. These figures should arouse State pride in every native-born Kentuckian and cause him to take part in this movement to educate our people into a higher citizenship, and lift the educational status of Kentucky among States. The campaign against adult illiteracy is being carried on in Montgomery county this week. An appeal is made from the Woman's Forward Kentucky Movement to the citizens of Mount Sterling and Montgomery county for funds to equip Moonlight Schools. Leave contribution at the Mayor's Office, The Public Library, Jones' Jewelry Store, or The Mt. Sterling Drug Company. No amount is too small to be received gratefully.

"WHEN THE FROST IS ON THE PUNKIN"

FRANK FOURNIER

When the frost is on the punkin, and the fodder's in the shock,
And you hear the kyouch and gobble of the struttin' turkey-cock,
And the clackin' of the guineas and the cluckin' of the hens,
And the rooster's hallylooyer as he tiptoes on the fence;
O, it's then's the times a feller is a feelin' at his best;
With the risin' sun to greet him from a night of peaceful rest,
As he leaves the house, bare-headed, and goes out to feed the stock.
When the frost is on the punkin, and the fodder's in the shock.

The Old Time Spirit of Thanksgiving

HE old-time spirit of Thanksgiving. "Ah, those were good old days!" This, with reminiscent sadness, When the care-worn man seeks his mother once more. And the worn matron smiles where the girl smiled before. This was the spirit of old-time Thanksgiving.

STUCK UP

Gee! Ain't he proud? Seems like he knows he's goin' to be et by our minister tomorrow!

TRUE SPIRIT OF THE SEASON

Thanksgiving Should Find Its Best Expression in the Doing of Some Kindly Act.

To limit reasons for thankfulness to mere material abundance, to national and individual prosperity, as so often implied, is to overlook the greater causes of gratitude. Every now and then pathetic instances bring out the heartfelt expression that "if one has health he has everything." Position and possessions count for little compared to the simple retention of health. So, if a man or woman today, unblissed by possession of the wealth or prosperity they think they ought to have, will ponder upon the blessing of health or upon the preservation of the lives and health of those near and dear to them throughout the year they must find deeper cause for thanksgiving than any mere increment in material things. This is the true reverence, the genuine spirit of thanksgiving.

But in expressing this spirit in thanksgiving services, in gladness and feasting, it must not be forgotten that the true thanksgiving must come from the heart, and will find its fullest expression in kindly act, in consideration of those less fortunate and in assisting to make others equally thankful. The thankfulness that is limited to self is ungracious and unworthy.

Yet even in temporal affairs the nation as a whole has cause for gratitude. No country has been more blessed with abundance of crops. Industrial and commercial conditions are normal. We have been spared from any great disasters. As a nation we are at peace with the world. The census shows a splendid growth. We face the future not only with confidence but enthusiasm.

First American Thanksgiving.

We have come to look upon Thanksgiving day as one of feasting and pleasure. It may differ from that of our grandfathers, but it's not so very far from the customs of the pilgrim fathers who first instituted the custom in New England. Did you ever have an account of the first American thanksgiving? The Puritans were accustomed to somber religious observances, but the spirit of a new world began to change the method of giving thanks. The transition was gradual, but occasionally the unexpected was thrust upon them in a very positive way.

Thanksgiving in the South.

Until the middle of the past century Thanksgiving was practically unknown in the South. In Virginia the first Thanksgiving proclamation was issued by Governor Wise in 1857.

DICK'S PARTNER

Mrs. George E. Pickett

Copyright by Daily Story Pub. Co.

HERE was snow on the peaks and the wind swept down the slopes and skinned wildly through the canyons.

The train pulled out from the little mountain station and left a passenger who stood on the platform looking over at the southwestern range as if dropped suddenly from another planet into an unknown life which presented puzzles of bewildering character.

"Be you Miss Lyleford?"

The girl looked attentively at the shaggy face as if with a view of classifying it and assigning it a place in the vast museum of human nature before admitting her identity.

"I am. You, I suppose, are Mr. Mawyer?"

"Yas; I'm Dick's pard."

Miss Lyleford extended her hand to him, while a smile lit up her face brilliantly.

"I am deeply indebted to Dick's pard," she said.

"No; it's t'other way 'round. I'm ownin' you for a sight o' things; more partic'larly Dick's life."

She clasped her hands and a look of anxiety replaced the smile with which she had greeted him.

"He will get well!"

"Sure—now. The sight o' you'd call back a man what had already staked his claim in t'other world and filed his application with the land office up yonder. He wouldn't want no land patent when he could take out the patent for the happiness o' jest lookin' at you."

The winning smile came back and dimpled her cheeks and filled each curve of her face with ripples of light.

"A girl what can make sunshine out o' all the clouds around her can take the grumpus out o' any man," thought "Dick's pard," looking at her admiringly.

"Now, miss, we'd better mosey," he said, "fer it's gittin' dark and the road long to our place isn't just the path I'd recommend a delicate young lady to take when she wanted a constitutional to brace up a run down system. You ain't skeered o' most things, are ye?"

"I don't think so."

"No, I should think if a river of fire and brimstone was here and somebody

"I Am Deeply Indebted to Dick's Pard," She Said.

You wanted to see was over yonder you'd go to that person."

"Possibly."

"Then you won't mind a little run like this. You see, we haven't any railroad to our mine. Sometime we'll have, when the workin's is more forward and we're a takin' the rocks out by tons. But it takes a time and while we're peggin' away we've got to git across the mountains the best we can, and that's burro train."

The expositor of mountain travel gave a peculiar cluck, what he called a "wink of his voice," and his own personally conducted train drew up beside him. Daisy Lyleford looked curiously at the strange little beast, with its pathetic expression of unvarying patience and strict devotion to duty.

"I never had a pass over this route," she said.

"You won't find it such bad goin', though it isn't ekal to the lightnin' express for speed. It gets there just the same and lays over the express in the matter o' landin' you most generally in one piece."

He assisted Miss Lyleford to mount the palfrey of the hills and the journey was begun, the miner leading the burro along a narrow winding path that ran across the foothills and along the edge of the canyon that opened darkly into the heart of the range. The sun went suddenly behind the mountains and night closed down early here while yet it was day in the valley. Over in the southwest flashes of lightning gleamed across the purple heights and thunder rolled faintly up the canyon.

"You must not be afraid of our mountain storms. They don't amount to much, 'cept to look pretty. An' this little cuss will take you safe as a rockin' hoss."

She smiled up at the rugged, kindly face that was dimly visible by the flashes of light.

"I shall not be afraid of anything with you to take care of me. I remember how good you were to Dick."

"Sho', now! I didn't do anything for him. He was mighty good to me when I hit the slag pile; that is, when I was down on my luck, you know."

"I know what you did," she said, softly, and her voice was like a strain of music across the wind that drifted down from the mountain. "He told me how you were his friend when he first came to the mines, a 'tenderfoot,' he called it, and how you 'knocked out' Big Stoker when he tried to play pranks on him. Then he told me about the time you went prospecting together on the west slope. It seems to me that I have gone over that trail scores of times. I have felt the desert sun blaze down on me till every drop of blood in my veins turned to fire."

"And then the climb away up the mountain, stumbling over rocks and slipping on smooth slides and scaling almost vertical slopes, and then the top, shivering in the cold, freezing in the sharp winds."

"It is a little coldishlike nights, waitin' fer the sun to rise; but, lordy! ain't it a fine sight when she does git up? It kind o' pays for settin' round on top o' the hill tryin' to keep warm by a brush fire that goes out mos' as soon as it kindles."

"Then that time Dick slipped on a glare of ice and fell down the side of the mountain into a crevice, and you crawled down and found him there hurt so that he could not move, and you put your own coat around him to keep him warm and sat against the wind to shelter him from it. You set his broken ankle and nursed him through all the days that he was helpless, watching him day and night. You scarcely ate anything in all the time that Dick could not be moved, lest the food that you had brought for the journey should give out and Dick might suffer. Then, when he was able to bear the motion, you carried him in your arms down to the plain and to the little station and took care of him till he was well."

"Sho', now! Did Dick tell you all that stuff?"

"He would have died that time if it had not been for you."

"That's nothin' for a man to do."

"I think it is a great thing for a man to do. It shows friendship, and I think that is not a common thing in life."

O PUMPKIN PIE

By WILBUR D. NESBIT

O pumpkin pie!

Athwart thy face
I see the glint of summer sun,
And twilight, when the day is done;
The sober peace of musing cows
Who in the meadow grasses browse;
The radiant glory of the morn
That sweeps across the nodding corn.
A thousand happy fancies start
When thou art nestled near my heart.

O pumpkin pie!

I hear the breeze
That whispered in the maple trees;
I see the swaying fields of wheat,
And hear the birdsongs, clear and sweet;
And, low across the land at night,
I catch the ballad of delight—
The chant the cricket sings in glee;
And summer comes again to me.
O pumpkin pie! Thus dost thou cast
Thy joyous glamour o'er the past.

O pumpkin pie!

Within thy breast
These gladsome summer fancies rest;
The golden sunshine and the dew
Have paid their tribute through and through.
The song the lark trilled in the air
Within thy form is echoed there;
For all these things of joy to me
Were caught and firmly held by thee.
O pumpkin pie! For all thou didst
I welcome thee unto my midst!
(Copyright by Wilbur D. Nesbit)

"Dick's my pardner," he said, quietly. Miss Lyleford had heard men say "he is my brother" with less of the finality of self-surrender that was expressed in the simple statement of the relationship of this miner with his friend. She heard a soldier say once "He is my comrade," with something of the deep, soft, earnest intonation of her escort.

A note in the sound of her voice reminded him of a voice he used to know away back in the years—his boyhood years—when he used to play with a girl in the schoolhouse yard. That voice had drifted away in silence long ago and he had not thought of it for years, except sometimes when he lay awake nights and heard a soft wind sweep through the pine trees. To his ear the wind had an undertone of sadness, as if it might have drifted over a grave.

A blaze of lightning lit up the mountain pathway. From the narrow ledge that wound around a steep wall of rock the girl looked down into the depths of a canyon that seemed to open into the heart of the earth.

Balaam will take you safe through, no matter how shaky it looks."

She looked up into the kindly, reassuring face, and smiled confidently.

"I am not afraid; but it all seems so strange and so beautiful, and awful. It is uplifted so far above the world that I do not seem to belong to earth any more. I wonder how the people who are used to such scenes feel, and if they are not larger and grander than we who live on the common levels."

"I suppose most folks are about the same old bad pennies, no matter where they live nor what they look at."

"How do you know about me so far away?"

"Dick had told me where he came from, and then, when he was out o' his head, he talked about you, and I thought maybe you lived back where he did. He didn't talk about anybody else, and I thought maybe you might be all he had, and then I sent the telegram hoping you might get it and come."

"You and I are all he has, and we will save him."

The man lifted his face up toward the dark sky.

"Yes, please God, we'll save him."

They had left the narrow defile and were on a high plateau.

"There is Tent Town just before us. That is our camp. We have no houses yet. Will you mind staying in a tent?"

"I shall love it. I never saw a tent before. It will be such a novel experience to live in one."

"That is his tent that has the light in it. Away over there, where the clouds have divided and there is a big, white star shining down onto it."

They fixed their gaze on the white tent and silence fell upon them until they had reached the little cluster of tents and Daisy's escort led her to the one next that on which the white star shone.

"This is yours next to his. Bill's taking care of Dick. Do you see the pink light in the window? That means he is better. I told Bill to put that light in the window if he was so that you might see it."

She stood for a moment in the doorway and looked over toward the east, where Thanksgiving day would dawn in a few hours. How full of gladness was the deep, dark night.

Why grin and bear all these ills when Sloan's Liniment kills pain?

"I have used your Liniment and can say it is fine. I have used it for sore throat, strained shoulder, and it acted like a charm." —Allen Dunn, Route 1, Box 88, Pine Valley, Miss.

"I am a painter and paperhanger by trade, consequently up and down ladders. About two years ago my left knee became lame and sore. It pained me at nights at times till I could not rest, and I was contemplating giving up my trade on account of it when I chanced to think of Sloan's Liniment. I had never tried it before, and I am glad to state that less than one 25c. bottle fixed me up apparently as good as ever." —Charles C. Campbell, Florence, Texas.

1914 and 1916.

The unofficial list of the members of the next House of Representatives as compiled by the Clerk and sent to the Public Printer, gives 233 Democrats, 193 Republicans, 7 Progressives, 1 Independent and 1 Socialist.

This is a Democratic plurality of 40 over the Republicans and a Democratic majority of 31 over all. It is not only as great a majority as any party ever needs in Congress, but it is as great a majority as any party ever ought to have.

If any Republican believes that this reduced Democratic majority in the Sixty-fourth Congress means the election of a Republican President in 1916, he is entitled to whatever measure of comfort he can derive from it; but he will obtain no consolation from the records of Congress during the last twenty years.

In 1898, following the great McKinley victory of 1896, the Republican plurality in the House was reduced to 22 and the Republican majority was cut to 13; yet in 1900 the Republican vote for President was greater than in 1896 and the Democratic vote was smaller.

In 1902 the Republican plurality in the House was reduced to 32 and the Republican majority to 30; yet in 1904 Mr. Roosevelt's popular plurality over Judge Parker was a little matter of 2,545,515. In 1906 the Republican House majority of 114 in 1904 was reduced to 58.

By the time the election of 1916 is held the policies of the Wilson Administration will have had a fair test.

The new tariff will have been in operation three years. The new banking and currency laws will have been in operation two years. The Clayton amendment to the antitrust law will have been in operation two years. Business, commerce and industry will have had time to adjust themselves to new conditions created by legislation that has been demanded by all parties for many years.

A thousand things can happen between now and election day in 1916 to turn the tide of popular favor; but there is nothing in the returns this year to indicate the defeat of President Wilson for re-election. His Administration has safely passed through its critical period. It has kept its pledges and redeemed its promises. In the Sixty-fourth Congress it will have an increased majority in the Senate and an adequate working majority in the House.

—New York World.

Another fact which has in it little of consolation for those who would like to believe that the result of the 1914 election means the defeat of Mr. Wilson in 1916 is that the Democratic party this year ceased to be a minority and became the majority party.

The Democratic vote in 1912 was some 2,000,000 less than the combined votes of the Progressive and Republicans. This year it was a straight-out party test, with the Progressives left out. The result was an increased Democratic majority in the Senate and a working majority in the House of 31.

As the World rightly says, the Wilson Administration has more ground for substantial encouragement on the face of the returns than had Mr. McKinley in 1898 and Mr. Roosevelt in 1902. He could not ask for more decisive victories than those two won at the next Presidential elections.

The danger of defeat to the Democratic party lay in this year's election. Its completed program of legislative enactment was the most radical that any party has had to stand sponsor for in half a century. The incident of war added hundreds of thousands of unemployed men to the ranks of those who could be counted on as opposed to the Administration because of the wiping out of the long-enjoyed privilege.

If the country is the better off for an end to special privilege through a discriminative tariff, if the new currency system is better than the old, if the prohibition of monopoly succeeds in restoring competition, if there is realized the half of what is to be realized out of being the world's chief market, Mr. Wilson's majority in 1916 will not suffer in comparison with that given Mr. Roosevelt in 1904.—Louisville Times.

MORE BONDS BURNED

Old Rail Road bonds of Montgomery county Nos. 39 and 40 of $1000 each, with thirty-seven interest coupons of $25 each, were burned in open court by County Attorney Earl W. Senff, who explained to the court that with the aid of the money collected from Menefee county it had been possible for the county to pay $25,000 of these bonds in the past five years, reducing this debt from $55,000 to $30,000, and that by strict economy the present administration ought to be able to wipe out this old obligation entirely and reduce the tax levy. The bonds bear five per cent. interest, payable semi-annually and now that the debt has been so materially reduced, the county can pay the ones outstanding much more rapidly than heretofore.

While redeemable at any time, the bonds are not due until January 1st, 1933.

DEPOSITORS MAY

GET 25 PER CENT

Through John J. Williams, attorney, State Banking Commissioner Smith filed in the Circuit Court a supplemental report giving a full list of the depositors in the George Alexander & Co., State Bank, Paris, Ky., which is in his hands, together with the amount of each depositor's account.

The report indicates that the depositors will receive 25 per cent. of their deposit some time within the next three weeks. The list of claims recognized by the Commissioner comprises 460 names, and a further list of claims is appended which have not been proven by their owners containing 210 names, making at the time the bank was taken over by the Commissioner 670 depositors who had money in the Alexander bank.

There were 440 accounts in which depositors had $100 or more; ninety-five accounts which showed a balance of over $500; sixty-one accounts of $1,000 and more; ten accounts of more than $5,000; three over $15,000, and two exceeding $20,000.

The largest deposit was $29,392.09, and the smallest was a balance of 1 cent. The unproven claims run from 1 cent to $100. Next to the $100 claim the largest claim to remain unproven is that of Pattie R. Bedford for $73.52. Another interesting account is that of the Children's Missionary Board, a balance of $20.43 remaining to its credit.

Louisville of which Miss Lovell is the director.

The program on Saturday morning consisted of music by the Girls' Chorus and the Boys' Chorus, addresses by Miss Mildred Lewis, of Ashland, Professor McHenry Rhoads, of Lexington, W. P. King, of Newport; V. O. Gilbert, of Frankfort and Miss Frances Heverlo, of Richmond. Hon. W. J. Fields was expected to appear on this program, but telegraphed that he could not reach here in time for the meeting.

When the report of the committee on nominations was called for R. I. Cord was nominated for president, W. O. Hopper for vice-president, J. H. Powers, of Rowan county for Secretary-treasurer and W. L. Jayne for director, which report was adopted by the Association.

County Supt. J. W. Rogers, of Harrison county invited the Association to hold its next meeting in Cynthiana, reading letters from the Mayor, City School Board and the County School Board. Upon motion it was decided to accept the invitation.

The meeting next year will be held the third Friday and Saturday in October in order to avoid the inclement weather which was experienced here last week.

After adopting a new constitution resolutions and the report of the auditing committee, the Association adjourned to meet in Cynthiana in 1915.

Although there was a sudden change in the weather, the temperature falling thirty degrees in a very short time, more members were enrolled at the meeting just closed than at any meeting in the history of the Ninth District, there being four hundred and fifty-three paid membership tickets as against four hundred and forty-six last year.

The local firm of Chenault & Orear very kindly furnished a number of modern appliances for the kitchen which Miss Heverlo, of the Domestic Science Department of Eastern Kentucky Normal, fitted up and which was of great interest to the visitors.

The Agricultural charts furnished by the International Harvester Company proved of great benefit to the Association, being daily studied by throngs of people.

Several publishing concerns and supply houses had exhibits in the school buildings as well as having several agents present mingling with the teachers and trustees. Among the companies represented were: Ginn & Company, Scott, Foresman Company, American Book Company, Peter & Voltz, The Linn-McCabe Company, E. W. A. Rowles & Co., Farmers' Journal, etc.

At the meeting on Friday evening, a collection was taken for the benefit of the "Little Belgians," resulting in something like twenty dollars being donated to the cause.

Those in a position to know estimate that the attendance was cut down not less than two hundred by the extremely cold weather. The exhibits of the work of the pupils of the local schools attracted wide attention. These displays were arranged in the rooms not being used for the meetings of the Association and were the cause of many kind remarks concerning the efficiency of our schools.

Great praise is due Miss Ethel Ferguson and her choruses of pupils from the various grades for the delightful music furnished throughout the meeting and comments were heard on all sides in regard to its high character.

The "Bale of Cotton" purchased by the Sophomore class was a feature which proved of great interest to the visitors and indicated the energy and enterprise possessed by that class, to say nothing of the spirit of cooperation manifested by the willingness to assist our neighbors in the South in a time of distress.

The ambitious Freshman class purchased for the occasion a large American flag which was presented to the school. During the sessions this flag was used for decorating the platform.

The High School Band from Cynthiana and one from Nicholas county added greatly to the meetings. A game of foot ball between the teams representing Cynthiana High School and Deaf and Dumb Institute at Danville had to be cancelled on account of inclement weather.

The students of the local High School acted as ushers, guides, etc., and were almost indispensable throughout the meeting. Their courteous and accommodating actions and cordial treatment of visitors attracted much attention and proved to all that Mt. Sterling is never found wanting when it comes to courtesy, politeness and true hospitality.
